A Vital Question.

EDITOR EVENING STAR:

I was much pleased with the sentiment expressed in your salutatory, which read: "We shall have fixed opinions upon all moral, political and financial questions and dare to express them fully and freely when necessary."

The public press wields a great influence upon the community in which it circulates, either for good or for evil. It is the auditory nerve, so to speak, of the people and consequently wields more or less influence, according to its ability. I desire therefore through the columns of your paper to say a few words, by way of eliciting some information upon a subject of vital importance to all.

It is this: Some time about the beginning of the year, two large christian denominations in their sessions (the Methodist in their annual conference at Jacksonville, and the Baptists in convention at Leesburg) addressed the following resolutions to the legislature of the state of Florida:

"We, the undersigned voters of the state of Florida, respectfully petition that at the approaching session of your honorable body you will enact such suitable legisder to submit to the voters of the said state at the general election lation as may be necessary in orin 1896, for their ratification or rejection, an amendment to the constitution of Florida prohibiting within the limits of said state the further sale or manufacture of alcoholic liquors of every description, excepting only such as are absolutely necessary for medicinal or mechanical purposes, and provid-

and were largely signed by the voters of the state. In our own city the petition was signed by many of our most influential citizens. The petition as signed was forwarded to the pastor of the church at Tallahassee and by him handed to the Legislature in session. Now sir, we as citizens and voters of the state wish to know what disposition was made of our petition. Please call the attention of that "August Body" to this, and we would like to know what our representatives did, or said about it.

Tampering with Mail Locks. New York World.

The locks on the mail pouches are so constructed that it is impossible to open one without its betraying the secret. There is a little dial on the lock and every time the lock is opened the figures on the dial move up one. Suppose, for instance, that the register shows 1147 at the point of departure, and that when the pouch is delivered at the point of destination the lock is opened, the register will show 1148. This increase of one is made for each trip of the pouch and eventually the number reaches 9999, which in an average bag requires 35 years to reach. The bag is then taken apart and the numbers are reset.

These locks were first introduced in 1881 and a mail clerk made a bold attempt to rob a bag in transit soon after their introduction. He took a small turning lathe in the car with him to aid in the scheme. After unlocking the bag he rifled the contents and connected up the lathe to the lock. His idea was to twist the numbers around until they were the same as before the lock was touched. He set the lathe humming and soon e off the numbers up to 9999, when to his consternation the register remained at that figure and refused to move any more. The lock must be taken apart before it did not know this. The trick was, of course, discovered and the guilty clerk punished. Since then the locks have never been tampered
